

Lesson 22: Quiz 6 - Revise Paragraph 4

Directions: Identify the revision questions explained in the Revision Checklist.

- Using the Revision Checklist, determine what is wrong with each underlined sentence.
- Write the appropriate number for each sentence.
- If you need help, the revised paragraph has been provided for you as well.

Remember: This draft contains revision and editing errors. Following the writing process, this draft will be revised and edited correctly.

Draft

Paragraph 4

Gloria was an excellent dancer who enjoyed playing the organ. She had an infectious giggle and was so honest, she would tell you if you were too fat, or too thin, because she truly cared about you and she was interested in your happiness and well-being. She loved her family and treated all of her friends as family. She loved her grandchildren, and felt blessed to have them in her life. Her door was always open, and her dining room table overflowed with delicious treats that made Martha Stewart look like an amateur. Unfortunately, she was unable to go to college and become a teacher. Her home was so neat, even her closets were in alphabetical order. Gloria loved her sister, Jennie, and was her caregiver until her death in 2002. Let us not forget how Roger took care of Gloria. For better or for worse, they stood by each other and loved one another deeply. They would have been married 60 years this September.

Revised Paragraph 4

Gloria was unique in many ways. She was an excellent dancer who enjoyed playing the organ. She had an infectious giggle and was so honest that she would tell you if you were too fat or too thin, because she truly cared about you and she was interested in your happiness and well being. She loved her family and treated all of her friends as family. She loved her grandchildren, and felt blessed to have them in her life. Her door was always open, and her dinning room table overflowed with delicious treats that made Martha Stewart look like an amateur. Her home was so neat, even her closets were in alphabetical order. Gloria loved her sister, Jennie, and was her caregiver until her death in 2002.

Lesson 22: Quiz 6 - Revise Paragraph 4

1. Gloria was an excellent dancer who enjoyed playing the organ.

Answer:

2. Unfortunately, she was unable to go to college and become a teacher.

Answer:

3. Let us not forget how Roger took care of Gloria. For better or for worse, they stood by each other and loved one another deeply. They would have been married 60 years this September.

Answer: